

Litigation Support & Arbitration Representation

Smart Legal Solutions, Straight Up.

Litigation Support

Many small and medium-sized businesses find themselves involved in contract disputes, unpaid invoice claims, partnership disagreements, vendor disputes, or other business conflicts. Unfortunately, traditional litigation can be expensive, and hiring a full-service litigation firm is often beyond the budget of growing businesses.

Some business owners try to handle disputes entirely on their own. While that may save money upfront, procedural mistakes, missed deadlines, and strategic errors can seriously harm a case.

Law Soda offers an affordable alternative.

We provide litigation support services for businesses that need legal guidance, strategy, document review, claims analysis, defense development, and procedural support without the cost of retaining a full-time litigation team.

We can assist with:

- Case evaluation and strategy
- Contract and document review
- Claims and defenses

- Filings and procedural guidance
- Settlement and negotiation support

For matters requiring court appearances or trial counsel, we may be able to coordinate with outside litigation attorneys when necessary.

Arbitration Representation

Many business contracts contain arbitration clauses, typically found near the end of the agreement. These provisions require disputes to be resolved through arbitration rather than in court. Some agreements also require mediation before arbitration can begin. When a valid arbitration clause exists, a court will often require the dispute to proceed in arbitration instead of litigation.

Arbitration is frequently conducted remotely, making it a practical and cost-effective option for many businesses. Law Soda can provide representation in arbitration matters from start to finish.

If your dispute is too large for small claims court but too small to justify the cost of a traditional litigation team, contact us to discuss your options.
